

Introducing the group:

The Department of Basic Sciences started its activities as an independent group and as a department in 1991 in the School of Paramedical Sciences and has continued its efforts by educating students of different disciplines in day and night courses. In addition to the 7 faculty members who are often in the formal-definitive stage of employment, the Faculty of Basic Sciences of the faculty also uses the educational experiences of the faculty members as needed. The context of the mentioned group is diverse and it combines different basic specialties in the field of vital statistics, sociology and anthropology, demography, Persian literature and English language and law and medical information systems in bachelor's and bachelor's degrees. It includes master's and doctoral degrees that provide educational services at the level of the faculties of the University of Medical Sciences. The system of scientific evaluation of students is in accordance with the educational system of the university and is done as a midterm, end of semester and seminar exam. The members of the group also hold various classes for students and, if necessary, train professors and staff.
