

Message from the Dean of the Faculty

Improving the level of community health, training capable personnel and providing diagnostic and treatment services at the highest possible level are among the main missions of medical universities. In order to achieve these goals, the School of Paramedical Sciences tries to cultivate committed specialists, experts and researchers by using educated professors, new teaching methods, promoting innovative, purposeful and transformative scientific researches and paying special attention to professional ethics. For this purpose, paying attention to quality education and research in educational departments is the basic approach of the faculty. In this regard, ethics, program orientation, seriousness, responsibility, commitment and accountability, innovation, transformation and preservation of human dignity will be the most important values of the faculty officials.
